

So far: a statistical description host variation, in terms of genes and microbes and which of it could respond to selection a way to describe, and a source of hypotheses how does it actually happen?

Next: a simple mechanistic model one host allele, one microbe, a population in trouble simple enough to give clear first answers