

Hosts are the patches; contacts are the dispersal events a social network is a microbial metacommunity

So taxa do not disperse independently if each taxon moved on its own clock independent dispersal

when one contact moves many at once the same average rate, clustered

